BLASPHEMY REBUKED.

When on Thursday a motion was made to fix an hour on Friday is advance, in order that two sick Senators could know when to absent themselves from their beds long enough to vote on the civil rights bill and return, the intense but turgid outburst of Wade immediately arose, blasphemously thanking God for the affliction of those Senators, (known to be opposed to the bill.) and, construing it as a Providential interferance for the sake of affording him, and his party the present opportunity to carry the bill, insisted on a vote forthwith- The Senate was shocked. Mr. McDougall rose and administered a most affective rebuke, which was propronounced by Repullican members as most fit and just. The scene was most impressive. The whole assembly seemed to be in full sympathy with Mr. McDougall's brief speech, and the countenances of all, save Mr. Wade, plainly responded amen to all he uttered. Mr. Mc-Dougall said : Mr. President, the Senator from Ohio is in the habit of appealing to his God in vindication of his judgement and conduct. It is a common thing for him to do so; but in view of the present demonstration, it may well be asked, who and what is his God? In the old Persian mythology there was an Oromasdes and an Ahriman—a God of light and beauty, and a God of darkness and death. The God of light sent the sun to shine, and gentle showers to fructify the fields. The God of darkness sent the tornado, and the tempest, and the thunder, scathing with pestilence the nations. And in old Chaldean times, men came to worship Ahriman, the God of darkness, the God of pestilence and famine, and his priests became mu'titudinous; they swarmed the land; and when men prayed then their offerings were: We will not sow a field of grain; we will not ville. dig a well; we will not plant a tree. These mh 28-td were the offerings to the dark spirit of evil until a prophet came who redeemed that ancient land. But he did it after crucifixion, like our great Master. The followers of Ahriman always appealed to the same spirit manifested by the Senator from Ohio. Death is to be one of his angels now, to redeem the Constitution and the laws, and to establish liberty. Sickness, suffering, evil are to be his angels, and he thanks the Almighty, his Almighty, that sickness, danger, and evil are about. It may be a good God for him in this world; but if there is any truth in what we learn about the orders of religion in the Christian world, his faith will not help him when he shall ascend up and ask entrance at the crystal doors. It there can be evil expressed in high places that communicates evil thoughts, that communicates evil teachings, that demoralizes the youth who receive impressions, as does the wax; it is by such lessons as the Senator from Ohio now teaches by word of word as Senator in this Senate hall. Sir, the President of the United States is a constitutional officer. clothed with high power, and clothed with the very power which he has exercised in this instance, and those who conferred upon him those powers were men such as Madison and Jay, and Hamilton and Morris, and Washington, and a host of worthies-men who, I think knew as much about the laws of government and how they should be rightly balanced as any of the wisest who now sit here in council. It is the duty of the President of the United States to stand as defender of the Constitution in his place as conservator of the rights of the people, as tribune of the people, as it was in old Rome when the people did choose their tribunes to go into the Senate Chamber among the aristocracy of Rome, and when they passed laws injurious to the Roman people, to stand out and say, "I forbid it." That is the veto power, incorporated wisely by our fathers in the Constitution, conferred upon the President of the United States, and to be treated with consideration; and no appeal of the Senator to his God can change the Constitution or the rights of the President of the United States, or can prevent a just consideration of the dignity of the Senate body by persons who have just consideration, who feel that they are Senators. It is a strange thing, an exceedingly strange thing, that when a few Senators in the city of Washington, ill at their houses, give assurance that they can be present to act upon a great public question on the day following that we should hear a piece of declamation, the Sena tor appealing to his God. and saying with an "Io triumphe" air, well or ill, God has made them ill. Sir, the God of Desolation, the God of Darkness, the God of Evil is hist God. 7 I never expected to hear such objections raised among honorable men. I never expected to hear such things in this hall, and I rose simply to say that such sentiments were to be con: demned and must receive my condemnation
